

Errant Anteater

Puzzle 2

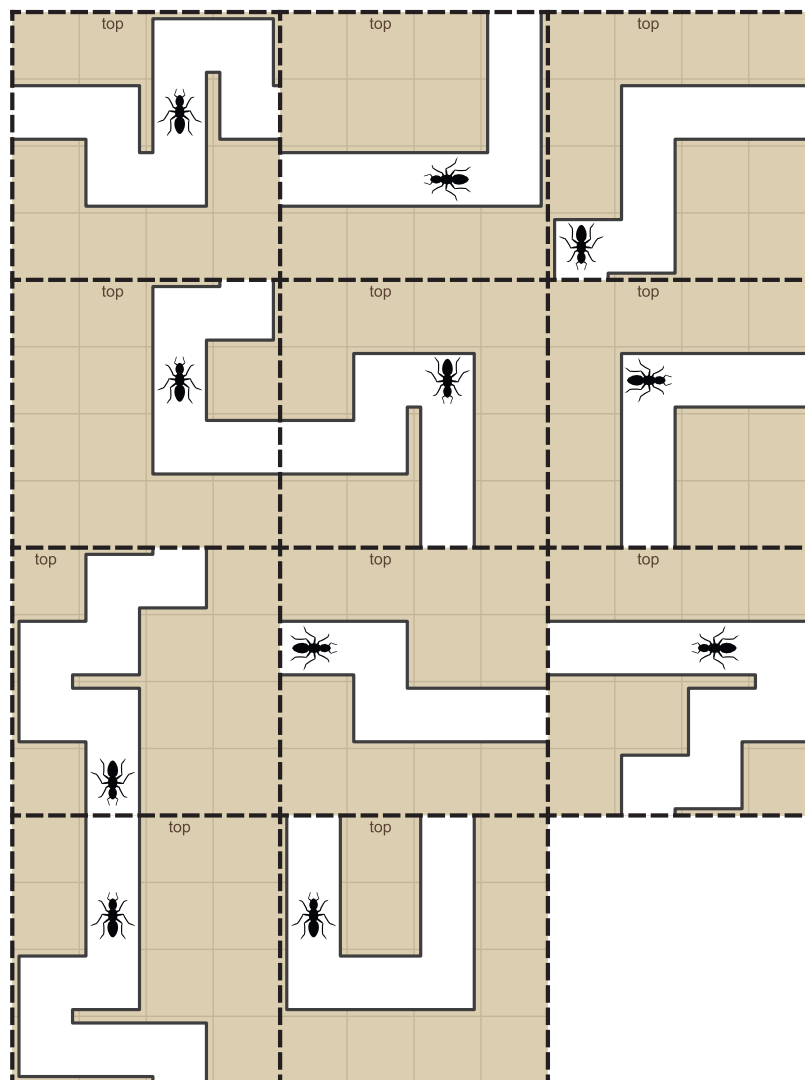

Page 1 of 2

This exuberant anteater has a penchant for gallivanting through the park's important ant farm. The vigilant assistant attendant is intolerant of this repugnant behavior and constantly spends a significant quantity of time chasing away this miscreant.

The ants were brilliant and made a closed-loop system to keep the anteater away. However, they are easily distracted by sugar cubes and have planted themselves at each one.

While the ants are busy in the tunnel, the anteater explores the surrounding dirt. What is he trying to do?

Cut the pieces apart. The top of each piece should be oriented in the same direction.

4 is FUN

Expert

You will need to use scissors (and might want to use tape), but wait to cut apart the

These stripes until you have filled them in and identified the comment from Savannah Graham.